Small-pox has broken out in the Workhouse. So far but one case has been taken from there, but as it was discovered in the institution it is considered probable that others will follow.

wrote a letter to the Board of Public Im-

On Jan. 29, Health Commissioner Homan wrote, a letter to the Board of Public Improvements recommending that every prisoner there be vacinated. The board took action upon the recommendation almost immediately and an order was sent to Supt. Lohrum to vaccinate all the prisoners. On the 8th of this month the board was out to the Work-house and President McMath asked if the prisoners had been vaccinated. Supt. Lohrum replied they had not.

LOHRUM'S DELAY.

"Why not?" asked Mr. McMath.

"Well," said Mr. Lohrum," I have sent in a requisition for vaccine points and haven't received them yet."

The records in the Commissioner of Supplies office show that the requisition for points was not made until Feb. 8.

On Feb. 11, seven days ago, the requisition was filled, and 500 points were sent out to the Work-house. The inspection by Chief Dispensary Physician Priest on Sunday showed that none of the prisoners had been vaccinated as ordered by the board. He immediately took charge of the matter the work of vaccinating the prisoners began, Work-house Physician Sellner assisted by Dr. Fuchs of the Dispensary corps went immediately to work, and by to-night it is probable that the entire 400 prisoners will have been vaccinated.

"We are almost certain to get more cases," says. Dr. Priest, "as this man Frank Robinson was taken to the Work-house en Feb. 6. The disease developed there, and it is certain with the crowded condition of the Work-house that others will come down with it. All we can do is to vaccinate and fungate and that we are doing to the ut-most."

rumigate and that we are doing to the utmost.

The cells at the Work-house are arranged to hold from four to eight prisoners. The beds are arranged in rows and tiers and during the past two weeks of cold weather the prisoners have spent much of their time indoors, besides sleeping together at night. The Board of Public Improvements will call upon Supt. Lohrum for an explanation.

TWENTY-ONE NEW CASES.

Since Saturday evening twenty-one new cases have been reported to the Health Department. Of these fourteen were reported Sunday and seven up to 10 a. m. today. One of these cases came from the jail. It was Jesse Graham, the cell-mate of Jesse Goodin, who was taken from the jail on Saturday. Following are the new cases reported to-day:

The first four of these cases were among the lot that had been installed in the "Chicken Coop" at the City Hospital as suspects. John Burns is the first white man who has come down with the disease and his case is said to be very bad. The case of Frank Robinson, taken from the workhouse, is also said to be very bad. DEMAND FOR VACCINE POINTS.
The demand for vaccine points at the Health Department since the office was opened up to 9 a. m. has been unprecedented. Long before noon Mortuary Clerk Karges had given out 1,400 points and then the supply for the forenoon gave out. These points cost the city siz cents each, making a total of $34 worth given out in one forenoon. These points are given to no one but physicians. This is according to the order of the Board of Health and causes considerably unfavorable comment to poor persons who come in and want them to vaccinate their family. If they get a physicion to come to the house he charges it each for vaccinating the family. Several men called and wanted two or three points, but could not get them. They were told they could go to one of the city vaccinating places and be vaccinating the family. Several men called and wanted two or three points, but could not get them. They were told they could not take their families out.

mer City of Sidney Is Detained Quarantine.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 18.—The steamer City of Sydney arrived from Panams and way ports this morning and was ordered into quarantine by Dr. Lawler, the quarantine officer, because of a case of small-pox which developed on one of the crew on the stoyage up the coast.

Shortly after leaving Panams one of the coal passers named James Brophy was aken sick, and though he showed symptoms of small-pox the real nature of his liesase was not known until Acapulco was reached. There he was taken ashore and he unarantine officer of the Mexican port, by Coatallana, assisted by Surgeon Hibstof the United States steamer Banning. BAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 18.-The and Dr. Volsard of the steamer, vaccinated all the passengers on board and every member of the crew. It was nine days ago when the sick man was taken ashore, and since them no sign of the disease has become apparent. As it takes, usually, fourteen days for the disease to manifest itself, Dr. Lawler decided that it would be safer to hold the vessel in quarantine for five days more, to make up the fourteen since the last contact with the contagion on the steamer, and make certain that the disease would not be landed in the city without proper precautions having been taken.

CAPT. SWANK SHOT

A St. Louis Traveling Salesman Killed in Texas.

WILLSPOINT, Tex., Feb. 18.—Capt. C. W Swank, traveling salesman for the Werth-eimer-Swarts Shoe Co. of St. Louis, was ac-cidentally shot and instantly killed here Saturday by T. R. Yantis. Yantis arrived on the 11:30 Texas & Pacific train and met W. W. Berzett on the platform. They became involved in a difficulty. Berzett drew his pistol, but did not shoot. Yantis drew and fired at Berzett, the ball missing its aim and striking Capt. Swank, going direct to the heart. The remains of the deceased were interred to-day by the Odd Fellows, of which order he was a member. Yantis was clarified to Canton, the county seat, and placed under $1.000 bond. Capt. Swank has been on the road for number of years, making Willspoint his headquarters, and has many friends here and among traveling and business men gen erally. He leaves a wife and two children. Mr. Swank had been in the employ of the Werthelmer-Swarts Shoe Co. of this city for the past three years as a traveling salesman in Texas. Previous to that time he was size adjuster for the wholesale dry goods Six & Co., in the same locality. Desided wrom unis wife and three children in the town where he met his death. He had been out on the road since November. He finished his trip last week and went home on Friday to make a short visit with his family before returning to St. Louis. He intended to leave home for St. Louis Sunday morning. Mr. Werthelmer says that Swapk was one of the most capable men in the employ of the firm.

OPEL DIVORCE.

The Motion for a New Trial Was Denied.

Judge Valliant denied Mrs. Myra H. Opel a new trial of her divorce case against Louis H. Opel, in which the defendant got a decree and was awarded the custody of their minor children on his cross-bill. The motion for a new trial was submitted without argument by Messrs. Johnson and Kehr on Friday.

Attorney Johnson has until the end of the February term to take an appeal. The appeal from Judge Valliant's decision denying Mrs. Opel 35,000 for legal expenses has already been granted.

the police recovered some of the stolen property.

Mrs. W. S. Allen, a widow, Mr. Wright McDanlel, Miss Anna J. Scott and Mrs. S. White, the hostess of the establishment, are the losers.

Mrs. Allen, the principal sufferer, is elated at the recovery of her marriage license, her marriage certificate and a packet of letters, mementoes of her husband, which the heartless thief threw away in the coal shed, when he saw he had no use for them. A thief who would take a lady's marriage certificate is worse than the man who stole pennies from dead men's eyes.

VALUABLES SECURED.

The articles stolen were four gold watches, pany. The appetising meal lost its charm, and each mind had an anxious thought for its owner's room.

Officer Hancock was notified and he questioned the help and took an inventory of the losses. Detectives Danaher and Schoppe were assigned to the case, and they instituted a strict inquisition.

The raid had been made some time during the day. The thief pried open Mrs. Allen's jewelry box, and stole her treasures, both golden and documentary. Mrs. White's room and Mr. McDaniel's room had been similarly ransacked, and the intrinsic value of the losses was over $400.

Flowers, a boy of 19, who had the run of the house, made fires, and did chores, was arrested on suspicion. He pleaded his innocence, but the detectives put him through a severe examination, and they state that he made a partial confession Sunday morning. He told them that some of the jewelry was hidden under an ice chest in a dark corner of the cellar, and the precious papers taken from Mrs. Allen's room had been cast into the coal shed as waste papers. The detectives found the articles in the places stated, but they could not learn where the reet of the property was.

not learn where the rest of the property was.

THREE MEN ARRESTED.

Certain things that the detectives learned from the colored female help caused them to question and then arrest Ben Allen, the cook, and later on Donohue. Allen denied having any knowledge of the theft, denied that he knew Donohue, or that he gave him the crumbs of the dinner table. The colored servants insisted that they saw Allen talking with Donohue, and giving him food. Therefore the detectives arrested Allen, and made a search for Donohue. They found Donohue, and, according to Detective Schoppe, Allen had him hidden in the cellar at the time he, Allen, was denying an acquaintanceship with Donohue.

Detective Danaher said that Flowers admitted hid the jewelry in the cellar, after taking it from Mrs. Allen's room. The police believe the three men conspired to loot the house.

At 11 a. m. warights were issued for Flowers, Allen and Donohue, charging them with grand larceny. They are accused of stealing Mrs. Allen's lewerry. A warrant charging them with stealing a diamond ring worth 375 from Miss Soott was not issued.

RIKÉR IN JAIL.

The Man Who Bid on the Bond Issue Charged With Embezzlement.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 18.-C. L. Riker, the crank who made the best bid for the $50,-000,000 recent bonds issued by the Government, is in jail on a charge of embezzle ment. He so far outbid other and better known men that Secretary Carlisle instiknown men that Secretary Carlisle instituted an investigation as to his identity. Riker was found to be a crank, and for a time his bid was unnoticed. He began suit in the United States Supreme Court at Washington against the Government. The Court refused to have anything to do with the case. His second thrust at his enemies, as he called Secretary Carlisle and President Cleveland, was to write a book entitled, "On to Washington," in which he scored the men who he claims so injured him by their unjust treatment. His present trouble dates from a World's Fair hotel venture.

HELD UP IN HIS HOME.

der's Bag of Money.

William Roeder, saloonist and grocer at 1800 North Eighteenth street, closed his place of business Sunday about midnight and went upstairs to his home with $18 in a sack. In the hallway two men seized him, and one held him while the other grabbed the bag of money. Both then escaped. Roeder fired three shots after them. A bartender, who was formerly in Roeder's employ, is suspected of complicity in the affair, but Roeder cannot identify his assailants.

Guatemala Will Oppose the Payment of Indemnity.

GUATEMALA, Feb. 18.—Le Inflesta, the leader of the anti-Mexican party, is suspected of urging President Barrios to take a firmer stand against President Dias.

Mexico's claims for indemnity are not likely to be allowed except for property destroyed by Guatemalia soldiers in their last incursion into Mexican territory. The claim of Mexican firms for cutting wood on the strip cannot be allowed.

It is believed here that the United States will never allow Mexico to annex any part of Guatemala's territory.

Freeddent Barrios declares that he has no intention of dissolving the National Assembly as a prelude to assuming the dictatorship. He said he was maintaining a strictly pacific policy towards all other Central American countries.

Riots are frequent in many sections of the country. While they are not important, they indicate universal discontent. Should President Barrios be unable to divert the attention of the people by a foreign war it is believed that he cannot prevent a revolution which will accomplish his overthrow. The malcontents have no plans yet, and they lack a leader with the confidence of the army and the people.

After being exhibited to the Sultan, it is said that he heads will be placed upon the city walls as warning to all insurgents. The rebel tribes in the South, though powerful and brave, are being rapidly brought under subjection.

TWO CAPTURED.

Arrest of Highwaymen Who Took Part in the Vandalia Robbery.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

VANDALIA, Mo., Feb. 18.—Two of the highwaymen who robbed citizens of this town Friday night were captured near Middleton Sunday morning with some of the stolen plunder, But little of the money was reovered. One of these robbers gave his name as Fred Woodruf, the other as James E. Morris, alias Williams, alias Martin, alias King. The latter is no doubt an old offender. Besides the revolvers stolen here there was found on his person a large Colt's revolver with H. C. J. carved on the steel under the trigger. On the ivory handle was carved the name Gabe, and near it the letter C. The number of the weapon is 19607. He also had a set of safe blower's drills. There were six or seven in the gang, which scattered after the robbery. It was their purpose to rob the town of Perry Saturday night. The gang is believed to be the one that assisted in holding up the train near Chillicothe recently.

PARKHURST'S DARK HINTS.

He Instnuates That Some of the Clergy Are Rascals. NEW YORK, Feb. 18.-The Rev. Dr. Cha. H. Parkhurst caused a sensation in his ser on yesterday by practically labeling as rascals a body of clergymen unnamed.

He preached upon the subject of sin, and luring the first part of his discourse kept himself upon the theme of individual sins of the ordinary style, but there was nothing startling in his remarks.

Then he branched off upon the sins of Then he branched off upon the sins of society at large, and it became apparent to the congregation that he had something concealed up his sleeve. This was indicated when he declared that "crowds have no consciences. Corporations are said to have no souls, no consciences. This is true, and a crowd has no consciences. This is true, and a crowd has no conscience."

At this point he stopped suddenly, as if in doubt to continue on the lines intended. After a brief pause, however, he remarked, "I will give you an illustration of this." And again he halted and looked around. "If you were to put a certain sum," he went on.

you were to put a certain sum," he went on, "In the hands of one man, one Christian man, for a particular purpose, you could feel sure that it would be used for that purpose. That man has a conscience. He would be responsible to the donor and to his own conscience."

That man has a conscience. He would be responsible to the donor and to his own conscience."

Another break followed in the discourse and every ear in the congregation was strained to hear what followed. Raising his voice, the clergyman continued: "But with a crowd it is different. A crowd has no conscience. To the point. A short time ago money was raised and placed in the hands of a certain body of men, mostly clergymen and elders. This body of men voted to apply this money and it was applied to a purpose that was distasteful to nearly all the donors. If one man had done that he would have been a rascal, but no one man in that crowd had done what was done, and a crowd has no conscience. Each took refuge in that thought. The man would have been a rascal, but the crowd has no conscience."

The remaining references to individual sins were lost upon the members of the congregation. Elders and other officials of the church looked at each other with vague and puzzled expressions. No one could tell what he meant, and the Doctor declined to be interviewed.

SENATOR VEST PROTESTS.

Ever since Senator George G. Vest de-livered some remarks concerning the Merchants' Exchange and the views of its mem bers upon the currency question, there has been no little attention paid him and his position in this matter by the newspapers, both in St. Louis and in the East. Senator Vest has read many of these comments, and apparently without losing that optimistic equipoise of his until he ran across a dispatch from St. Louis in the New York Evening Post.

This dispatch was to the effect that the Senator, having insulted the Merchants' Exchange in order to conglitate his rural constituency is now busy writing apologies to its members, declaring that he meant no reflection whatever upon the Exchange by his remarks. His apology, according to the dispatch was prompted by a desire on Senatorial boom of ex-Gov. Francis, the champion in St. Louis of "honest money"—in the words of the New York Post—in order that he might be sure to succeed himself.

This dispatch seems to have stirred the with the manager of the hotel. She was directed to Chief Clerk Cunningham, to whom she told the following interesting story:

Before going into details she informed the clerk that she was not what she seemed to be. She said she was not a "she" at all, but was in reality a man who had adopted the guise of a woman for a purpose. Although somewhat disconcerted by this rather startling plece of information, Mr. Cunningham did not give vent to any outward sign of embarrassment, but calmly asked the stranger to go on with her-or, rather, his-story.

"My name is I. A. Turner," he said "I live in St. Catherine's. Ontario. About six weeks ago my wife deserted me, and fled from her home as I believe in company with a commercial traveller who was in the habit of visiting our, town nearly every month. My wife met this man at the home of a mutual friend some time last summer and I have since learned that she met him afterwards every time he came to St. Catherines. My suspicions that they have fled together are strengthened by the fact that they were seen together in the street the afternoon of the day she disappeared.

"As soon as I realized what she had done I at once took steps to to discover her whereabouts. I went to the office of the drummer's firm, which is in an Eastern city, and there ascertained that he would be in St. Louis in the course of a few days. I then made up my mind to come here and learn for myself if my suspicions that my wife is with him is true. As he knows me by sight, I concluded to adopt this disguise, as it is my desire to keep my identity concealed from him until the time comes for me to act. If I find that my wife is with him, I will thow off my disguise and have both parties arrested. I was informed that this man would stop at the Planters', so I came here intending to wait till he arrives. When he does come I wish you would arrange it so that he would be assigned to a room next to mine.

Zorilla has been a factor in Spanish politics for nearly half a century. He is in his sixty-first year. His public career began when, at the age of 24 and while practicing law in Madrid, he was elected to the Cortes as a Progressist. He has been a Minister of State three times, Premier twice and President of the Cortes once. He has been twice exiled, the first time for participation in the uprising of 1886, but he soon went home and became Minister of Public Instruction and Commerce under the provisional Governunder the provisional Govern-

Zorilla headed the deputation which went to Florence in 1870 and offered the Spanish crown to Victor Emanuel's second son, the Duke of Aosta. When the Duke took the throne as King Ansadeus, Zorilla was his right-hand man. During that brief, troubled reign Zorilla had a rapid succession of ups and downs, but was Premier when Amadeus abdicated in 1872 and followed him to Portugal.

From that time Zorilla has been so pronounced a Republican that the Government has preferred to worry along without his advice or even his presence in the country. The order of exile in his case was countermanded in 1873, but he refused to return to Spain while political friends were still under condemnation.

SADIE THOMPSON WRECKED.

Loss of a Philadelphia Barkentine and Her Cargo.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—A cablegram received here from Nassau, N. P., by the Board of Marine Underwriters states that the Philadelphia barkentine, Sadie Thompson, Captain Mowatt, bound from Caribairien Feb. 5 for this port with 5,600 bags of sugar valued at $100,000 consigned to the sugar trust, has been totally wrecked on Memory Rock, Bahamas. The vessel is valued at $100,000, and together with the cargo, was fully covered by insurance in local companies. The total loss of this valuable cargo and vessel is the largest marine casuality which has happened to vessels bound to this port for several years. The Sadie Thompson was launched at Camdon, N. J., July, 1892, was 154 feet, 4 inches long. 36 feet, 5 inches beam and 16 feet deep, and 632 tons registered. While no mention of the safety of the crew is made in the cablegram received, it is generally believed that all hands have been landed safely.

Cushier Figgat Had Been Dishonest for Twenty-five Years.

CHICAGO. Feb. 18.—A special from Richmond, Va., says: It is now quite certain that C. M. Figrat, the defaulting cashier of the Bank of Lexington, stole about $150,000 from that institution. He got away with $50,000 capital stock and nearly $70,000 belonging to depositors. The developments show that Figgat's stealings cover a period of twenty-five years, and depositors are annry with the directors for having failed to detect what was going on. The bank is left with only $6,000 in cash.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.-In a speech in the Senate Mr. Dubois of Idaho gave intimation of a change in the rules of the Senate that is very likely to be brought about. He said that it had become very evident that the Senate Committee on Appro priations was becoming overworked, and the time had arrived when the duties of that committee should be lightened by having the various appropriation bills divided committee should be lightened by having the various appropriation bills divided among those committees which had jurisdiction over the subjects treated in them. This intimation made something of a size in the Appropriations Committee. Beyond all question this committee is the most powerful in the Senate. It handles every appropriation bill except the river and harbor, and this is only a biennial measure. In every direction it is supreme. If a Senator desires to secure an amendment to any of the various bills he is obliged to introduce it, then refer it to the committee having jurisdiction of the subject when appropriations are not concerned, and then have it reported and referred to the Appropriations Committee to be incorporated in the proper bill. This was the course pursued with the amendment appropriating $500,000 for the Hawaiian cable, as well as a hundred other amendments proposed this session.

Since the short speech of Senator Dubols, the feeling in the matter has grown as it has been talked about, and a proposition to change the rules in this particular is sure to meet with favor, the only difficulty being to get action. It is proposed that all appropriation bills, save those known as the general bills, treating of all subjects, shall be referred to and handled by the committee as follows:

Agricultural, to the Committee on Agriculture; fortifications, to Committee on Coast Defenses; rivers and harbors, as now to the Committee on Commerce; District of Columbia, to the District of Columbia, to the Committee, in this particular, to the Committee on Foreign Relations; Indian, to the Committee on Indian Affairs; army and mittee on Foreign Relations; Indian, to the Committee on Indian Affairs; army and navy, military academy bills, to the Committee on Military Affairs; naval, to the Committee on Naval Affairs; pensions, to the Committee on Pensions; post-office, to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post Roads.

the Committee on Pensiens; post-office, to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post Roads.

This would leave the legislative, executive, the sundry civil and all deficiency bills to be handled by the Committee on Appropriations, and by those who favor the change it is asserted that this will be ample for that committee. It is pointed out that during the consideration of the post-office bill, Senator Blackburn, who had it in charge, was unable to attend the conference on the diplomatic and consular bill, although the House conferences were ready to confer for three or four days. It is also claimed that the Senators who serve on the other committees would be better able to handle the various subjects because of their intimate knowledge of them.

Another argument used is that the importance of these committees would be increased, and, as a consequence, the importance of many Benators. There would not then be a struggle for places on appropriations, and many Senators, in caring for their particular interests, would be glad to serve on committees having charge of an appropriation bill in which they or their people were particularly interested.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations consists of nine members, and the argument is made that this is too small a number to have such power. To these nine the remainder of the Senate must come for appropriations of every kind except those relating to rivers and harbors. No man can get a place on this committee unless he has served a considerable time, although this unwritten law has been broken in one or two instances. The Senators who are working for the change say it can be brought about, as almost the entire membership of the committees, so whom the various appropriation was made, are in favor of it and are strong enough to carry it through.

Lulu, as she was more familiarly called, had been skating on the sidewalk with Florence Halpin, a playmate. Lulu had only gotten her skates a few deays before and as she could not manage herself well upon them, Florence assisted her.

After they had enjoyed themselves for about two hours Florence complained that her feet were cold and asked Lulu to accompany her into the latter's home to warm them. The little accordingly went into the kitchen of Mr. Teuteberg's house and Florence seated herself on a chair in front of the stove. The cook was also in the room. Lulu stood by a window, looking out when suddenly she turned and complained of dizziness. She walked over to her playmate and laid her head upon Florence's shoulder.

Suddenly the little girl fell to the floor, and, for a moment, the domestic thought there was nothing wrong, as Lulu was a lively child and full of pranks. But on closer observation the cook saw from Lulu's face that she was suffering. She hastily called Mrs. Teuteberg, but Lulu was in a dying condition before her mother got to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Teuteberg are strong advocates of the Christian Scientist theory of healing, so strong that they will not acknowledge that it is a belief, but regard it as a fact or condition that must be accepted without questioning. Therefore Mrs. Teuteberg began to apply the teaching of her falth for the cure of her child. In the meantime Mrs. Julia Field King, Mr. and Mrs. Teuteberg's instructress in the doctrines, was sent for, but before she arrived life was extinct.

The family are not shaken in their belief of Christian Science by the death of their daughter. They do not regard the change as death, but that the little one's time had come and that she simply said "good-by" and left them for a time. They look upon it as a change, not to sorrow for, and have not altered the arrangements of the house in the least, but the eyes of all the members of the family are red with weeping for the departed one.

Lulu was treated by the scientific method two years ago, and was relieved, and heretofore it has always been successful in our family.

To-night there will be a big banquet, at which distinguished guests from all parts of the State are expected.

FOR CARONDELET PARK.

& Lake Will Be Made, and Work Fur nished the Unemp

Carondelet Park is to have a lake, the making of which will furnish work to hundreds who are not able to find other employment. A year ago a mass-meeting of citizens was held, at which it was decided to make an effort to secure such an attraction for the South End. A bill was introduced into the Municipal Assembly appropriating $4,000, but it was pigeon-holed in the Council. The city had no money for the purpose. Hope was abandoned by the committee, which is composed of the following representative citizens of the South End:

Mr. Fred W. Mott, one of the founders of the citizens' movement and the head of several charitable undertakings in Carondelet during the severe winters, conceived another plan, Lee suggested that the Post-Dispatch follow out its Forest Park plan of improvement and relief in Carondelet Park and turn over to the committee the balance of the fund left over after making the Post-Dispatch Lake.

This has been arranged. The committee will receive the balance of the Lake Fund, 55,755, 35, and the accrued interest, 5129.03, to she list inst, making a total of 5,864.83 to be expended in making a total of 5,864.83 to be expended in making a total of 5,864.84 to be expended in making a total of 5,864.85 to be expended in making a total of 5,864.85 to be expended in making a total of 5,864.85 to be expended in making a total of 5,864.85 to be expended in making the lake and giving employment to the unemployed. Engineer Kalby of the Street Department already has plans for the lake, which has long been hoped for by the residents of that part of the city. They jealously watched the action of the Municipal Assembly favoring O'Falion Park with a 5,000 appropriation for a lake. The announcement that the Post-Dispatch would turn over the balance to the Citizens' Committee, enabling them to secure the coveted improvement, and at the same time carry out the good work in which several members of the committee have been active during many winters, was very gladly received.

Mr. Mott said: "This will be a god's blessing to the people of Carondelet. It solves the problem we have so long worried over."

Park Commissioner Fechter, to whom the plan was presented two weeks ago, urged it ardently. "The ground is a natural site for a lake, the Citizens' Committee in provement, in the making of which the city will furnish the more co

Detectives Viehle and Smith were in charge of the raid. They entered the place with the blue coats and driving everyone not connected with the establishment out put the others under arrest and locked the doors. While they were counting up the money and securing the evidence the patrol wagon stood outside and 1,000 people gathered gaping in idle curiosity. Hedges has been in St. Louis three years Previous to that he lived all his life in Louislans. Pike County, Missouri. Some ten or fifteen years ago he tired of farming and became a huckster, following this occupation until 1826, when he came to St. Louis.

HOW HE MET THE PRESLYS.

He had meanwhile secured a pension of $13.50 a month, and by working as an accountant here and there managed to live fairly well. Always having been devoted to his religion, after his arrival here he joined the People's Tabernacle, at Eleventh and Locust streets, and became a regular attendant at the services and prayer meetings there. Mr. and Mrs. Presly had been members of that congregation for years, and, in course of time. They became friends and Hedges went to board at their house. He was the only boarder there and, of course, saw a great deal of the children. He had not been there but a short time when he conceived an infatuation for Ida, the 13-year-old daughter, who is a bright pupil of the Hamilton School, at Twenty-third and Dickson streets. He showered his attentions upon the pretty child and, of course, she was pleased with his kindness toward her. He fell desperately in love with her and wanted to marry her. They became angaged, according to his story, nine menths ago and were to be married Feb. 16, but, he says, the mother advised him to postpone the wedding until her birthday, March 3. Last Friday Mr. Presly got word from Troy, Mo. his old home, that his father was dying there, and both he and Mrs. Presly left for here Saturday.

Spencer, pastor of the People's Tabernacle and Ed Fresly, brother of the prosecuting witness.

HEDGES' STORY.

Hedges talked readily concerning the case, "It's all the fault of that Miss Belle that I'm arrested," said he. "I'm in love with Miss Ida and have been for a long time. We've been engaged for nine months. Her parents have given their full consent to our marriage and we are to be married on her birthday, March 3. I don't know how old she is. Some say she is 15 and some say she ain't that old, but that don't make any difference since her parents consent.

There wouldn't have been any trouble about our marriage at all of it hadn't been for this Miss Belle. Since she came, she's been tryin' to turn the folks against me and prevent the match."

Hedges felt quite dejected over his incarceration. He declared he was as peaceful it way of any one but Miss Belle. He said he bought Miss Ida and had nothing ill to say of any one but Miss Belle. Pretty Mamie Cameron, the 17-year-old wife of Cline W. Cameron, is at the Female Hospital, dangerously wounded from two bullets fired into her body by her husband. Her fool husband is in a cell at the City Hospital, slightly wounded from an attempt to commit suicide after trying to murder his girl wife.

That the horrible deed was premeditated is proven by letters found upon Cameron, addressed to his mother-in-law, his mother and to the public, and in addition to all this be has admitted that he went about his murderous mission knowing what he was doing, and with the purpose of killing both his wife and himself. The tragedy was enacted at the Female Hospital where Mrs. Cameron has been staying for some time to be treated for tonsilitis and eaf trouble. Cameron went there Sunday morning and held a long and earnest conversation with his wife that no one else heard. He appeared to be trying to get her to consent to something, and she appeared to be refusing his request. Suddenly the attendants were startled by the report of a pistol shot coming from the direction of the cot occupied by Mrs. Cameron. On turning they saw Cameron with a pistol in his hand, but before anyone could stop him he fired three more shots, two of them at himself and one at his wife.

Dr. Richard Kerley, the Hospital Superintendant, who chanced to be in an adjacent ward, on hearing the shots ran in and found both Cameron and his wife lying on the floor. Mrs. Cameron was found to have two wounds, one over her heart and the other in her left cheek, the former being considered very serious. Cameron's injury was worse in his own imagination than in reality, for, although he had only received a slight scalp wound in the center of his head, he believed he had placed a bullet in his brain and fell, apparently unconscious, to the floor.

Mrs. Cameron's injuries were at once attended to while her murderous husband was taken to the City Hospital, where he for a short time feigned insanity. The policeman in charge of Cameron told him to drop that game and to answer Dr. Heine Marks' question. Cameron did so and said that he had tried to kill his wife because she had refused to come back and live with him on account of her mother's influence. He said that her mother had lived with him for five weeks, was drunk all the time and that he had not been able to support her or give her money to buy drink. Cameron's clothing was searched and the following letter, addressed to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Bridget O'Connell, 496 North Eleventh street, was found: FEIGNED INSANITY.

letter, addressed to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Bridget O'Connell, 406 North Eleventh street, was found:

MY DEAR MOTHER-IN-LAW—I will leave these few lines to let you know that I am about to take my own life and also your daughter's life, too. If you would have let her and me alone this would not have happened. You came to stay with would not have happened. You came to stay with trouble that it discouraged me to work, and you carried off my money. I as sure that you will never look of the weeks. I worked until you caused me so much trouble that it discouraged me to work, and you carried off my money. I as sure that you will never look of the work and fram sure tet a so, for she told in everything you and the old man told her. * * I suppose you are been sure the so, for what you have done, but it is too late now, for we are both dead and at rest. If I didn't love her it wouldn't take her life.

Another letter was addressed to his dear friends, while a third was addressed to his mother, Mrs. M. Amous of 2320 Carr street. On a separate piece of paper he had written.

husband. I have killed her for she didn't love me, but I love her with my whole heart.

CAMERON'S STORY.

Cameron appears to have no realization of the enormity of his crime. This morning when seen he maintained the same air, except that he said he was glad to hear that his wife's condition was improving. He said he had been married for six months and knew that his wife loved him, as he did her, but her mother had driven him to the crime by her meddling.

Timothy O'Connell, the father-in-law, was seen at 406 North Eleventh street. He said that his wife and he were not living together and that the cause of it was that she would get drunk. She was, he said, working in a private family as a domestic, and could not be seen. He denied that Cameron ever supported his mother-in-law, but on the contrary had only been enabled to get along at all through the assistance afforded him by his wife's two parents. This assistance, O'Connell said, was only given on account of the girl. He further said that he had never known Cameron until after his daughter was married, and that he then tried to look up his history. In so doing, he said, he learned that Cameron had been forced to leave Petry County on account of having betrayed a girl. He also found out, he said, that Cameron's mother, Mrs. Amous, had married three times and all of her husbands were still on earth. He concluded by saying that Cameron's mother, was seen. She said that while she was at her former home, in the Southern part of the State, last June, she received a letter from her son, telling her that he and Mamie O'Connell had gone to Belleville and married, She said she was opposed to his marrying Mamie, but said nothing, as she did not his kit would do any good. When she returned in September, she says, her son and his child wife both confessed to her that they were not married, but had merely been living together. Then Mrs. Amous says the gir's mother declared she would prosecute Cameron for the betrayal of trious and would do any kind of work to make money to support his wife. They were happy, she says, until the girl's mother came to their rooms and staid there drunk. That, she says, was the cause of the trouble. She denied that her son had been forced to leave Perry County on account of the betrayal of any girl, but admitted that he had betrayed a girl in the County Poor-house, who had a child by him. She attributed his action, in part, to lunacy. She said he was not right in his head, and she had known it all the time. She claimed that her mother had had brain trouble for nineteen years and thought that her son's inherited the disease from that source. She did not admit there was anything wrong with her own head.

The girl's parents are very bitter against Cameron, as they believe their daughter will die of her injuries. Inquiry at the Female Hospital elicited the information that while her condition is critical, Mrs. Cameron had shown some improvement.

Flint & Co. and Coombs, Crosby & Eddyhas at last been consummated. The new concern of Flint, Eddy & Co. has a capital of $3,000,000, and the consolidation has been effected for the purpose of extending the trade of both firms, which already includes sevenly countries and colonies.

The foreign commission business is one of such infinite variety that it was believed that only through a large consolidation could sufficient business be controlled in any line to justify the employment of special talent in the execution of orders.

Thirty-seven years ago Wm. J. Coombs began the exportation of American manufactured goods. After some years he formed the firm of Coombs, Crosby & Eddy, which has devoted itself to the extension of that market. Benjamin Flint, the founder of Flint & Co., in association with Isaac F. Chapman, entered upon his business career in 1840 by the building and management of sailing vessels, and to-day their successors have one of the largest fleets of sailing vessels in the world.

Chas. R. Flint, the present senior of Flint & Co., entered the South American commission business as a prinicpal in 1872. For nine years he devoted his time to the purchase of American manufactured goods for export, and in the management of lines of vessels to the west coast of South America. He, together, with the other principals in the consolidation, has been prepared a long time past to take advantage of the efforts on the part of manufacturers to secure a foreign outlet for their goods.

TWO GARROTERS.

They Held Up Frank Kroener, but Were

Pursued and Captured. A warrant charging William Minor and Frank Kane with robbery in the first degree was issued by Assistant Prosecutor Johnson at 10:30 a. m. About 1 a. m. Sunday Officer Hanrahan of the Central District was attracted to a fight on Olive, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, and as he approached he saw two men running away. He chased one of them, and, after firing a few shots, overtook him on Eleventh and Chestnut streets. The prisoner gave the name of Frank Kane and said he lived on Seventh and Market streets. He was afterwards identified by Frank Kroener of 2417 McNair as one of the men who held him up and robbed him on Olive street a short while previous of 312 and several collar buttons. A few of the buttons were found in his possession. was issued by Assistant Pro session.

Kroener gave a description of the other as sailant, and Officer Hanrahan arrested William Minor on suspicion. He was identified later by Kroener. He said that Minor held him around the neck while Kane relieved him of his valuables. Kane was formerly a porter at Martin Henry's saloon, Sixth and Market streets.

Frank Turner Beaten Into a State of Insensibility.

Frank Turner, a buggy-washer, who lives at 410 Spruce street, while in Kavanagh's saloon, Broadway and Clark avenue, on Saturday night last, got into a dispute over a game of pool with an unknown man and in the fight that followed was knocked down and beaten over the head with a billiard cue. He was carried out of the saloon unconscious and Dr. Coryell, who examined him, said he thought his skull was fractured. Turner was then sent to the City Hospital, but the physicans there say his skull is not injured. Hugh Henry, who, according to Turner, was implicated in the assault, was arrested by Sergt. Fox of the Central District in his room, 81 Walnut street. Henry denies all knowledge of the affair. A man named Luke Leblong is said to have been seen running away from the saloon with a cue in his hand. He has not been arrested as yet, but the police claim they are after him. Turner's condition is serious, but not necessarily dangerous.

Theory That Ass Mulford Was Murdered

Instead of Committing Suicide. GREENCASTLE, Ill., Feb. 18.—At the inquest held on the body of Asa Mulford, a well-known and highly respected farmer living one mile south of town, who was found by his family on their return from church yesterday hanging in his barn, his wife testified that when he left the house he had a watch and chain and some money on his person and that they were missing when he was found. This fact has led some to believe that he had met foul play. Though no cause is known, the position in which he was found would hardly justify any other theory than that of suicide. He was a class-mate of President James A. Garfield. He was once engaged in the jewelry business in Richmond, Ind., and had accumulated quite a fortune, which he lost in the panic of 1878.

A new summer theater and garden is to be established at Wells Station and will probably be completed in time for this summer's business. Who the projector of the enterprise is could not be ascertained, but as he was introduced to the real estate men through whom he secured a lease on three and a half acres of land by Mr. Blits Wainwright, it is thought Mr. Wainwright is backing the project or that he is at lease interester in it. It is also probable that the Suburban Railroad may take an interest in it.

Wainwright, it is thought Mr. Wainwright is backing the project or that he is at least interester in it. It is also probable that the Suburban Railroad may take an interest in it.

Mr. Jungenfeld, the architect, has been consulted with regard to plans for the new it theater and will probably prepare them. The project is one which has been considered for some time, but it was not until the lease was taken upon the site that much credence was taken in the enterprise. Wells Station has long been a popular resort for the public on warm summer nights, as it or rather the ground just northeast of it, is the highest point in the city, and is said to be the coolest. The projector of the new theater have evidently taken advantage of the popularity of this site in making their selection.

Plans for the buildings have not yet been prepared, but from what can be picked up among the real estate men with reference to ideas of the projectors, the theater will be a very elaborate affair. The entire three and a half acres will be utilized for the patrons. Gardens with carefully laid out walks and shrubbery will occupy the space not under roof for the theater proper. Another circumstance which has no doubt greatly encouraged the projectors is the report that the Uhrig's Cave property may be sold at any time to parties who will do away with the show at that place, in ordes to put up a large hotel and club building.

The Consul said the vessel was needed for the protection foreigners. The Mercury is a cruiser of foreigners. The Mercury is a cruiser of 3,000 tons and carries thirteen guns.

The Japanese are suspected of having designs on Formosa. The capture and annexation of Formosa would complete Japan's island empire. With Formosa Japan would have a sweeping semi-circle of islands off the coast of Asia, from the southern point of Kamichaka nearly to the Tropic of Cancer. The island has a population of about 3,000,000, with fine harbors and could easily be taken by Japan.

Nine years ago Mr. Waddell was Professor of Civil Engineering in the Imperial University at Tokio, Japan. He remained in Japan for four years, leaving there in 1886, and three years after his departure the Japanese Government, through the Mikado, bestowed upon him the title of Knight Commander of the Rising Sun. This makes Mr. Waddell a member of the Japanese nobility. He was made ing Sun. This makes Mr. Waddell a member of the Japanese nobility. He was made a Knight by the Emperor, personally, and was given a decoration which is studded with jewels. Naturally he had favored Japan in its war with China. Some time ago he studied how the city of Pekin might be entered and captured and hit upon a plan which he says cannot fail. He sent drawings, maps and explanations in detail to the Japanese Government and is positive that they have received earnest consideration. He has not yet heard from them, but believes that if the war continues Pekin will be captured through the use of his information. His plan, he says, is simply the applications of old principles in a new way. No new force or explosive is necessary. The scheme is simplicity itself, but is so effective that it places Pekin actually at the mercy of the Japanese.

THE CAT OUT OF THE BAG.

Broker James Campbell, the reputed father of the scheme for the consolidation of the street railway companies of little hope of the passage of the two cort poration bills in the State Legislature which will make the realization of his plans possible.

The reasons given by Mr. Campbell are of great interest to the public. He says the bills will probably fail because there is no lobby in Jefferson City specially charged with the task of pushing them. and that this is due to the failure of the street car companies to agree on the amount of money which each shall contribute to the fund necessary to mainain a lobby and secure favorable action

It is/seldom that the people are treated to such a delicious exhibition of ingenasness on the part of a corporation manager with regard to corporation legislation. Mr. Campbell makes it clear that the companies look upon these bills as special favors designed wholly for their benefit, and requiring special influences and compensations to induce legislators to vote for them. He shows also that the ompanies view the securing of this legislation as merely a matter of lobby work and money influence.

If the Legislature decides to pass laws raising the limit of capitalisation and permitting companies to pool their stock in monster combines, the people will know why. They will know that the street car companies have come to as agreement with regard to the lobby and the slush funds necessary to carry out

FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

The Post-Dispatch takes special pleas ure in announcing that, after stren uous efforts since the beginning of the winter to find a way to utilize the remainder of the Post-Dispatch Lake Fund for the benefit of the unemployed, a plan has been perfected which we are sure will meet with the hearty approval of the donors and the public.

The first idea was to devote the funto the enlargement of the Forest Park lake. It was thought possible by adding to it the $25,000 due from the Suburbar Railway for a station pagoda and a sub stantial contribution from the Missour Railway, to enlarge the lake into a fine racing course. The fund itself being insufficient for this purpose, and the rail way managers refusing to do their part despite the great advantages that would accrue to their roads, the plan had to be dropped.

But through State Senator F. W. Mot of the Carondelet Citizens' Association an excellent way has been opened for the beneficial use of the fund. This association has long been laboring, without suc cess, to secure funds from the city for the construction of a lake in Carondelet Park The plan of utilizing the Post-Dispatch Lake Fund made the realization of the hope of the association possible. The plan was approved by Park Commissioner Fechter, who decided that no special legislation would be necessary to put it in operation. Work on the lake will. therefore, begin at once and immediate relief will thus be offered the unem ployed of the city.

The sum left over after the completion of the Forest Park lake was $5,735.35 This sum was deposited as a special fund in the State Bank of St. Louis, bearing per cent interest. It now amounts to $5,864.38. The whole fund thus swelled by interest will be expended under the super-vision of the Carondelet Citizens' Association, composed of thirteen representative

The Post-Dispatch can assure the onors of the fund that the money will be expended in accordance with the purpose for which it was given. It will benefit the city and afford employment to the

As related in the news columns of the Sunday Post-Dispatch, the storm which wept over the country last week was unrecedented in extent and severity. Every section was visited, but it was in the South especially, where the remark able character of the blizzard was made manifest. In Atlanta the snow fall of twelve nches was the heaviest ever known. Street car traffic was demoralized and for a time stopped, while business suffered in consequence of the unexpected fall in temperature. In Florida the people saw for the first time in their lives four inches of snow. In Augusta, Ga., sleet and snow made walking impossible, while in Texas cattlemen report that 25 per cent of the stock was lost. Several persons were frozen to death, while the suffering among the poor was very severe, owing all the facts discovered in connection with to lack of preparation for such an un-

How easy it is for a bank cashier to steal is shown once more by C. M. Fig-gat of the Bank of Lexington, Va. Mr. Figgat has been helping himself for twenty-five years and has got away with $150,000, which includes everything in and out of sight. All the capital stock is gone, to say nothing of the depositors' noney. Of course, Mr. Figgat was a highly respected citizen and trusted ser vant of the bank, and of course the directors are surprised and hurt. Incidentally we are informed that Mr. Figgat had two big valises with him when he took the west-bound train.

The provision in the sundry civil appropriation bill for the issuance of time tificates of indebtedness for $100,000,000 for three years at 3 per cent is excellent and might have saved a great deal of trouble, but it is probably too late to complish its purpose, which was to meet Treasury deficits as they arose. The gold ring bulldozed the Administration into the long time 4 per cent issue and it is not likely that the Secretary of the Treasury will need the authority conferred upon him by this act, as the revenues will be sufficient in a month or two to pay all expenses.

It was here I first met Miss Gould. I accepted an invitation to go with Mr. and Mrs. George Gould and a party to Canada, and when I came back I was engaged to be married to a charming, simple and unaffected young lady. My wedding will take place probably on March 4. It will be in Mr. George Gould's home, and Archbishop Corrigan will perform the ceremony. Only a few friends will be present. My brother, Count Jean de Castellane, will be the best man, and Raoul de Boul, the Prince de Drago and Howard Gould the Ushers. AT THE THEATERS.

Nethersole To-Night.

Nethersole To-Night.

By the time the curtain was ready to go up last night at the Olympic Theater neither love nor money could buy the late comer a seat. Every chair from the pit to the gallery had its occupant, and to use a horsey phrase, the "railbirds" were three deep at the back of the house. The occasion of this weicome was the return to the city of the Liliputians in their new piece. "Humpty Dumpty Up to Date" and the big crowd was kept in a continuous state of good humor at the comicalities of the famous little people. "Humpty Dumpty Up to Date" is the most pretentious play that the Rosenfelds have yet furnished the Liliputians. It is gorgeously staged, particular attention being paid to the spectacular features. The ballets are skillfully arranged and the subject novel. The ballet of Flies, the ballet of Frecious Stones, and the ballet of Humpty Dumpty are very clever, indeed, and make the performance worth seeing to those who do not understand German, which is the language of the players.

The little people are as clever as ever. Franz Ebert, Adolf Zink, Bertha Jaeger. Herman Ring, Seima Goerner, Elise Law, Ludwig Merkel, Ida Mahr and Toni Meister were all as bright and amusing as sprites from a world of fun. The dialogue is clever and the trick pantomime features skillfully planned.

and the trick pantomime features skillfully planned.

"ALIMONY" AT THE HAGAN.

When Tim Murphy and Eugene Canfield left here earlier in the season with "Alimony," after having "tried it on the dog." so to speak, at the Grand, it was predicted that before many weeks had passed the play would be worked into a real good thing. At that time it was crude and many opportunities for amusing situations and for the introduction of clever business were lost. The plece is still somewhat crude, but it has been very materially improved, and those who saw it performed at the Hagan yesterday were more than pleased with it.

The principal change is in the third act, which bears no resemblance to the original one. Commodore Tomline is chased from New York in the midst of a political campaign to South Dakota, where he becomes the divorce court Judge, and insists upon untying every nuptial knot he can lay his hands on.

The act closes the play rather abruptly, but it is a big improvement over the old one. Both of the comedians have filled in their parts with catchy business. Canfield's satire on the college football player is more grotesgue than ever and very funny. Miss Dorothy Sherrod and Miss Sarah von Stembler, who are the wives, respectively, of Murphy and Canfield, are very clever. The rest of the company is not particularly strong. Miss Celia Albaberg, who has been with the Pope's Theater stock company, played the part of Mrs. Separate Maintenance, but she did not get from it all that the author intended.

"A Railroad Ticket."

"A Railroad Ticket." "A Railroad Ticket."

"A Railroad Ticket," with its sense in little quantities and its nonsense in very large quantities, was stamped and punched with great enthusiasm at Havlin's 'yesterday. The old framework was filled in with new specialties and it went like a new farce-comedy. Among the people who contributed to the success of the plece were William Blaisdell and Hattle Waters in "I'm Not Old Enough to Know;" Miss Alice Oakley, Harry Porter, Alice Carle, James T. Kelley and the DeForrests.

The Standard Bill. The Standard had for its attraction yesterday the variety company of the Irwin Bros. Many of its features are much above the average. Luigi del'Oro, the Italian musical phenomenon, made a hit with his freakish foot-playing on an organ. The dancing of the Morton's was novel and unusually refined. Bennetto and Gannon, contortionists, were also very clever. The performance was closed by an exhibition of John White's educated mule, who displayed both an intelligent and vicious nature.

The Continuous Show. The Continuous Show.

The feature of the specialty at Pope's was Barney Fagan and his pickaninnies, who presented a series of lively and realistic pictures of negro pastimes on the old plantation. There are nine diminutive Southern darkies who sing camp-meeting hymns, dance and a genuine cake walk. The balance of the vaudeville worthy of special menton was Jansen, Riany and Hentley, Dorothy Drew, the Williams Swiss Bell Trio, Moore Sisters, Valvino, Bessie Searles, the McKees and Bubols Brothers. The drama presented was Milton Nobles' creation, "The Phoenix." Weinberk, Williams, Mackley, Burnham, Miss Morse and Miss Conway were seen to advantage.

MUSICAL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Glancing back over the operatic season of 1894-95, which ended Saturday night, as did that of last year, with a performance of "Faust," brings up not a little that is suggestive year, with a performance of "Faust," brings up not a little that is suggestive of thought, both musical and otherwise. That the season has been as success can hardly be questioned; that it has been as brilliant and interesting from an artistic standpoint as that of last year can hardly be affirmed. From a practical and managerial standpoint the results of the season have been satisfactory, as, starting out with a much larger subscription, the receipts have been uniformly larger and the percentage of profit in the managerial coffers more than double that of last year. Since the season opened in November, or, in ninety days, including the performances in Philadelphia and Brooklyn and the Sunday night concerts, just 100 performance have been given; certainly a remarkable record to be placed to the credit of any management. There were fifty-two regular performances, which proved a welcome innovation; twelve performances in Philadelphia, seven in Brooklyn, six extra performances in New York and thirteen Sunday night concerts to make up the managerial century.

The average receipts for each perform-night concerts to make up the managerial century.

The average receipts for each performance were over $6,000.

The criticism and stricture probably most generally passed on the results of the season will be list lack of nevelty and the consequent, almost, at times, wearisome repetitions of the old operatic standbys which we know so well and which, apparently, as people continue to go to see them, we love so dearly.

Altogether, whatever, its defects, whatever its shortcomings, and in truth and justice be it said—barring the matter of novelties—they have been few indeed, it has been a season which has given great pleasure and artistic satisfaction to many, if perhaps lacking in decided high lights of artistic interest and exotement.

2. When the three Normals were established there were many who favored them, but now think, in view of the fact that there is a surplus of teachers in almost every county, these schools have served their purpose and are therefore willing that the State should abandon them.

3. The existing Normals have hundreds of friends who would desert them if to retain them would necessitate establishing others.

tain them would necessitate establishing others.

The plea that the Northwest part of the State is entitled to one shows the real ground upon which the claims of the enterprise are urged. It is to be a sectional school! As to the crowded condition of the existing Normals, this can be easily remedied. Although in common with the other Normals, the one at Cape Girardeau is also used for high school purposes, it has never been crowded. There are in attendance upon all these Normals many students who never expect to teach. It is true they take a pledge to teach in the schools of Missouri, but this pledge has never been considered sufficiently binding to keep many who do not intend to teach from signing it. If the State desires to establish high schools, it ought to separate them from the Normals. Confine the Normals to their legitimate work, that of training teachers, and the present ones will not only supply the demand, but will do better work.

Mud Sidewalks in a Maternalia

Mud Sidewalks in a Metropolis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have just returned to St. Louis after an absence of nearly two years, and the first point I visited was the neighborhood of Tower Grove avenue and Old Manchester road. It is a populous center, and I could hardly believe my eyes when I found that no improvement whatever had been made in the sidewalk situation. It is a succession of broken boards at all angles, little stretches of cinders, long gaps of mud, and numerous pools of water. They have built large and handsome schools, factories and houses out there, but the children and their parents, visitors and everyone else must still wade, hop and hobble along apologies for sidewalks that would disgrace an Indian Territory "city" founded last week.

Did not the large money lenders dictate to the different Governments the demonetizing silver so that they could reap a larger profit in furnishing a scarce article thereby?

Our Lost Street Names. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Two or three years ago the city government had a number of tin slips painted with the names of streets and placed on the disused lamp-posts at street corners. It was a cheap and filmsy method, and the slips have now disappeared to such an extent that one may travel miles through the streets and only see one or two in last stage of dilapidation. A city without names at its street corners exhibits a slipshod, hasty and disorderly spirit. For the sake of her reputation among her thousands of visitors, St. Louis should remedy this defect.

In the case of ex-Street Sprinkling Inspector Patrick R. Fitzgibbon against the City of St. Louis, a suit for Srfs, claimed as salary from Aug. 1, 1883, to the end of the year for which Fitzgibbon was appointed, Attorney Leverett Bell filed in Judge Fitteraft's court a petition for an order commanding the city to produce at the trial the letters of the Street Commissioner appointing Fitzgibbon sprinkling inspector on Feb. 8, 1883, and Al J. Wagenmann to the same position on Aug. 1, 1883, and other documents bearing on the case.

Fitzgibbon maintains—that he was appointed under the charter and ordinances for a year and that he was removed without cause by the Mayor. The salary is $1,500 a year. The legal defense set up in City Counselor Marahall's answer is that Fitzgibbon voluntarily relinquished the position of street sprinkling inspector and never attempted after Aug. 1, 1895, to administer the office.

Judge Valliant Passes Upon a Collateral

Collateral Loan Co. and John W Staley got a setback in Judge Valliant's court in the replevin suit of John H. Vette against Labarge and others. Judge Valliant handed down a memorandum of his finding of facts along with his decision, awarding to Labarge the property in dispute.

Labarge pledged household goods to se-

Judge Valliant found that Vette was not an innocent purchaser and holder of the note, as was maintained, as two payments were due and unpaid when he secured the note. Judge Valliant is convinced that the whole method of doing business adopted by Staley and his associates was contrived to evade the act of 1891 forbidding usurious interest. While he did not believe the plaintiff's witnesses testifed falsely, "yet everything was so apt and such an effective foil to every point of the statute that it forces the conviction that each acted his part according to a well arranged programme and with an eye on the act of April 21, 1891.
"Such acting does not deceive anybody else and there is no reason why it should deceive courts."

HIPNOTISM!

Special to The Post Dispatch.

VARNA, Ill., Feb. 12.—About three weeks ago a brief telegram sent out from Peoria told of the discovery of John Foster, who had been missing from his home near this place since 1890. The full story of Foster's disappearance, this I'ms search for him made by his relations, and his final discovery, is full of interest. Three miles cast of this place is the old homestead of John Foster. The Fosters are wealthy—for two miles on either side of the road, running east and west, lie the vast estates of the Fosters, father and sons. The sons were marrying off, and as they took unto themselves wives a goodly portion of the estate would be given them. At last there lived at home but two sons, James A. and Jack. The mother died and Jack married and took up his abode in a tenement house just across the road. His father lived with him. James preferred to "batch" it in the big home, and is became cynical and reticent. He secured a renter for his eighty acres and lived with them, but he tired of the place, and in a fit of despondency he left. He had but 310 with him, as he had tried to make a settlement with his tenant. This was the evening of Oct. 18, 1890. As there was nothing peculiar in his going nothing was thought of it, but as the days wore into weeks without his return his family became alarmed and inquiries were made. He was fraced as far as Peoria, where he spent three days, stopping at a hotel. The third evening he returned to the hotel and paid his bill and left.

The best detectives in the land were put on his trail. The papers bristled with advertisements of his mysterious disappearance. It was an eight-day sensation. Placards were posted, bills distributed by the thousand, but of no avail.

Foster was then 32 years of age, having no beard or mustache, sandy hair, a florid complexion, slightly stooped in gait, fairly built, weighing about 156 pounds, 5 feet 8 inches in height, slight scar on left side of the face near the cheek bone. It was stated that his friends thought his mind was unbalanced.

inches in height, slight scar on left side of the face near the cheek bone. It was stated that his friends thought his mind was unbalanced.

The press assumed that he had been foully murdered, and after a time the matter slipped the public's mind. Not so with George Foster, a brother. He never gave up the search, and was in constant communication with detectives, running down a false trail about every three months. George had a double purpose in finding his brother, outside of the humane motive. It was to restore to the rightful owner an estate valued at 20,000 and to remove the suspicion that hung over the family that they were the murderers.

Early last January J. C. Burgoyne of Andalusia, a little Illinois town on the Mississippi, noticed a telegram in the papers stating that James Foster, who was missing from home had fallen heir to an estate worth $10,000. Mr. Burgoyne is an ebserving man, and he connected the description of the lost heir in the dispatches with a man employed as a farm hand by Ferrel Gable. He came to Varna and acquainted Foster's family with his discovery, but they were incredulous, having followed so many false clews. Mr. Burgoyne was so positive that he had found the long-lost man that he agreed to pay the expenses of George Foster to Andalusia and return.

Jan. 23 George Foster stood in the kitchen of Ferrel Gable's house and a messenger was sent to the barn to bring the farm hand in. George replied: "I am glad to see you, George." And a painful silence then fell on the party. All withdrew and left the brothers together.

They went back to Varna. James tells the following story:

"I left Varna and went to Peoria. I saw the sights there for three days. On the third evening I attended a small entertainment in an out-of-the-way place. A man was messmerizing people and called me onto the stage. I went. After four and a half years I met my brother George. That's all."

The Fosters believe that James never recovered from the messmeric influence, and

The Sea King Returns With the Derelict

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 18.-I. F. Overman, a wealthy oil operator of Chicago, has closed a deal by which he becomes the possessor of several thousand acres of valuable Jackson coal lands in and around Wellston, O. The amount of capital involved in the deal is said to be several milition dollars.

cbeth Not a Fiend-Impelling Power That Drove Them to Murder.

Ledy Macbeth Not a Fiend-Impolling Power That Drove Them to Murder.

The sixth and last of a series of sermons on "The Gospel in Shakspeare" was delivered by Dr. Robert A. Holland yesterday mornig at St. George's Episcopal Church. The sermon is herswith given in full:

"But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is flaished, bringeth forth death."—Epistle of St. James, 14-15.

"If it were done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly. If the assassination could trammel up the consequence, and catch, with his surcease, success: that but this blow might be the be-all and the end-kil here. But here, upon this bank and shoal of time. we'd jump the life to come."—Macbeth Sollieguy.

It is not necessary to apologize for the incident which opens this play—the witches' dance. The belief is witches was a popular belief of the time; and that some persons had power to foretell events, an undoubted fact to the Scotish mind of that period. Moreover, these were not simply popular superstitions, but were in accordance with the judgment of learned and judicial minds. Bason, Sir Mathew Hale and Pope all gave assent to them.

It is not necessary to apologize for the belief itself. However silly it may seem to the scientific mind of to-day, it is, nevertheless, true that in those old times men accounted to themselves for their, beliefs by ascribing all happenings not clearly understood to some supernatural or uncanny agency. The evil thought leaps into sinful act only under the stimulation of favorable opportunity; but as soon as it is an act it becomes a part of a great chain of events outside of the mind that bore it. The witch was this "outering" of evil purposes, the embodiment of foul and murderous thoughts, the myth of irresistible temptation.

This all-pervading and powerful belief. which often changed the lives and fortunes thoughts, the myth of irresistible temptation.

This all-pervading and powerful belief, which often changed the lives and fortunes of the best and greatest who held it, is a fitting and suitable ingredient in a drama which presents the tragedy of Macbeth.

The hidden thought may project itself into outward form because of the opportunity of happy chance, or bad society, or general tumult, or political revolution, or may be even through the sin-breeding atmosphere of an unhappy home. There must always be the favoring circumstance as well as the evil thought.

The "witch" is in the world, as well as in the individual wish.

The "witch" is in the world, as well as in the individual wish.

MACBETH'S TRUE CHARACTER.

Macbeth was a noble soul, of kindly impulses, patriotic, brave and loyal. He could not have fallen into an abyss of sin, but for favoring and almost resistless currents, which drew into violent deed almost unconscious reveries. A man of giant will, a dauntless warrior, the nation's champion, he could not have bent every knightly quality to sudden greed and ambition; but his noble soul was caught by evil circumstance that involved him in a tangle of overwhelming consequences.

stance that involved him in a tangle of overwhelming consequences.

Duncan, Scotland's King, is old. He is weak of will, unable to deal with the turbulent, revolutionary spirit of his realm. Macbeth, the victorious general, the people's hero, is his kin.

In course of time the people must elect another King, for the crown does not necessarily descend in the same family. Who so fitting as the leader of the nation's army, one who has proved himself equal to emergencies?

one who has proved himself equal to emergencies?
So, in the pride of bis success, thoughts like these flit through his mind. Surely, if in time Duncan dies, and someone must succeed him, who so fitting as he who is already the people's leader!
In this hour of his elation, while the messengers of a grateful King are hurrying to him with thanks and a new title, he has the vision of the three witches, who salute him "Thane of Glamis," "Thane of Cawdor," and "King hereafter."

The first title he recognizes as his own, but "Thane of Cawdor" and "King hereafter."

the first title he recognizes as his own, but "Thane of Cawdor" and "King hereafter!"

The messengers of the King soon convert the witches' prophecy into fact. Duncan has made him "Thane of Cawdor."

Can, oh can it be, that one day the people shall salute him "King."

So a passing thought has received the element of possibility. The sexless witches, with a woman's form and a man's beard, brewed their evilness of all manner of low beast life, symbolic of the beastly nature of sin. If, with their vile incantations, they could make him like themselves in brute passions, he would be so much the more powerful because of his man's huge will.

At this time, Macbeth declares "my thought, whose murder yet is but fanastical" must look to chance rather than to wilful deed for realization.

"If chance will have me King, why chance may crown me, without my stir." The growing ambition, the lust for power is fertile soil for the thought continually stirred by the witches' prophecy, "King hereafter."

Duncan proposes to honor his subject remores is only repentance without the power to explate. There is no pain in paralysis. So the guilty, suffering soul lead on by a shostly dagger goes to his deed.

Now see how the deed changes the whole world around him. Suspicion cast upon Duncan's sons forces them into exile; then Banque, of whose sons the witches prophesied that they should be Kings, is a mental to the permanence of his rule; he must, be slain; then Macduff, taking fright flees and Matbeth slays his defenseless wife and children.

So the one act is a grim fate that compels the whole long list of horrors, until Macbeth, hardened to blood, stands alone, friendless, his rule a joyless defense of a crown, trying to "trammel up the consequences of his deed," as though his hands were long enough to reach to the ends of the world.

And his wife, their mutual deed stands forever between them. Waking, her will could bear her up, but when night comes, and sleep strips off the armor of her will, she still wanders wide-eyed with sleepless thought for "Macbeth hath murdered sleep," and nightly lives over the one awful night of crime; sees the blood; and washes her hands in spectral water which cannot cleanse.

But Macbeth is past even this perdition her hands in spectral water which cleanse.

But Macbeth is past even this perdition which is the torment of his wife; from their plunge into a whiripool of crime he has drifted into the stagnant pool of death-death of a soul in a living body—a crowned carcass, whose stench infects the land.

DELAWARE'S DEADLOCK.

Fifty Ballots Have Been Taken for United

DOVER, Del., Feb. 18.—The fiftieth ballot in the United States Senatorial fight was taken to-day. It resulted as follows: Higgins, Republican, 8; Addicks, Republican, 5; Massey, Republican, 4; Wolcott, Democrat, 7; Tunnell, Democrat, 4; Wolcott, Democrat, 7; Tunnell, Democrat, 4; It will be five weeks to-morrow since the Senatorial fight resolved itself into a deadlock, and there appears to be no immediate prospect of its being broken. It was rumored here that overtures had, been made to both Addicks and Higgins by the Republican National Committee to withdraw in favor of a third party acceptable to both candidates, but the rumor cannot be confirmed.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 18.-Clar ence A. Barr of Worcester, Mass., a guest at the Carlton House, has disappeared. He at the Carlton House, has disappeared. He registered at the hotel on the 2d. He is described as being about 25, rather tall, dark hair, smooth face, and a red scar on the left cheek, which looks as if it had been made by a surgical operation. He has not been seen since dinner on Thursday. He was a student at the Northfield Training School, East Northfield, Mass. He left his luggage in his room at the hotel, and his overcoat at the coat-room, although the day was a cold one. The proprietors of the hotel think he must have become slightly demented and wandered away, but the polic are of the opinion that he is the victim of sharpers. A telegram has been received from Waycross, Ga., as follows: "C. E. Barr is under arrest here for forging the name of Mr. W. W. Rogers of Savannah, to a check for $1,200." The police are trying to learn whether this is the missing man, but nothing has been found as yet to prove his identity with him.

INDIAN SUPPLY DEPOT.

It Will Be Closed at Chicago the Last Day of February.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—The Indian supply depot in this city will be closed the last day of February. Ex-Mayor D. C. Creiger, who was appointed Indian Agent at Chicago last May, will cease his connections with the Interior Department at the same time.

with the Interior Department at the same time.

The order of the Interior Department discontinuing the depot does not give any reason for the step, but it is believed to be, due to the statements of the Indian Commissioners in their last report that no benefit to the Government had resulted from its establishment ten months ago. Previous to that time the purchase of Indian supplies was conducted by the bureau at New York, and the establishment of a branch at this place was the result of agitation by Chicago merchants.

LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

Consolidated System.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 18.—Four days ago it was officially announced that the Nantasket branch of the Old Colony Division of the Consolidated system would be equipped with electricity and that the passenger coaches running over it would be propelled entirely by electric power. Col. Heft, President of the Bridgeport Traction Co., has been secured by the Consolidated to take charge of the work at Nantasket. The Bridgeport Traction Co. operates forty-two miles of street rallway. The Nantasket branch is only seven miles long. The consideration of this circumstance led to an inquiry which resulted in the statement from an official of the road that the Consolidated intends the construction of the largest electrical system in the world.

Engineer Upleby's Disobedience Wrecks a Train.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Feb. 18.—As the result of a disobedience of orders a disastrous wreck occurred on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad about four miles south of this city at midnight. At that hour the south-bound passenger train met the north-bound Texas live stock express, killing the engineer of the freight train and injuring sixteen persons.

It appears that Engineer Upleby of the freight had received orders to meet the passenger train at Seward, eight miles south of here, but failed to stop. He ran right through the station and met the passenger about half way between Seward and Guthrie. The exact spot at which the accident occurred is known as Dead Man's Gulch. The passenger train had not attained full headway when Engineer Prysaw the light from the freight across the curve. He quickly reversed his engine and jumped, followed by his freman. The trains came together with great force, telescoping the baggage and mail cars and haif a dozen freight cars. In an instant there was a wild scene, the sound of escaping steam mingling with the cries of the passengers and the bellowing of four score gigantic Texas steers, who, infuriated by pain, or the smell of blood, had broken loose and were dashing frantically up and down the cut, endangering the lives of those attempting to rescue the injured.

Lying close beside the angines, one across the other, were found Engineer Upleby of the freight train and Fireman Coldron of the passenger. The former had leaped from his post against the rocky side of the cut, and being hurled back against the engine, was terribly crushed, while from the pocket of his jacket protruded the order, disobeyed with such dire result. Fireman Coldron was fearfully scalded by escaping steam, and for two hours was thought to be down as fearfully scalded by escaping steam, and for two hours was thought to be down as fearfully scalded by escaping steam, and for two hours was thought to develop by physicians, and he now lies in agony at Hotel Daly in this city, nursed by his wife, brought by spec wife, brought by special train from Arkansas City.

The injured were rescued from the wreck as fast as possible, and at 2 o'clock brought to this city and given every care, a large number of Christian ladies at once volunteering assistance. The body of Engineer Upleby was prepared for burial and taken to Topeka. He was but 29 years old, and leaves three children and a widowed mother. The cut is completely filled with wreckage, demolished freight and baggage, and the bodies of nearly 100 Texas cattle. The track will not be cleared before this afternoon withough these wrecking trains and

It has been shown that eleven men stood for conviction on every ballot against one for acquittal, that five of the eleven favored a sentence of five years in the pententiary, while the remainder favored three years or more. Considerable speculation is now manifest as to the cause of the obstinancy of that one juryman, whose name is Coffee, and who voted 'mot guilty' on each of the ten.ballots taken. He agreed to vote for conviction if the penalty would be fixed at the minimum penalty, 350 fine. Later he said he would committy would and $50 fine. Upon this the court discharged the jury.

Henry T. Kent, one of the attorneys, gave it as his opinion that the action of the jury looked very suspicious. He said: "I was told in the courtroom that one of the attorneys for the defense had boasted they had the jury fixed. One member on it is said to be a near relative of one of the gang we are after."

Chicago Cyclists Stirred Up Over Taxation of Bicycles.

ASSOCIATED CYCLING CLUBS ISSUES

Claimed That the Tax Is Illegal, and Is Class Legislation-New York Wheel-men Having Trouble in a Different Way-Sporting News in General.

The Associated Cycling Clubs of Chicago has issued the following letter concerning Alderman Ballard's proposed bicycle tax ordinance. It is issued generally:

"It has come to the attention of this association, through the medium of the city press, that at the last meeting of the City Council, held on Monday, Feb. II, Alderman Ballard of the Second Ward presented a resolution ordering the corporation counsel to prepare an ordinance providing for the licensing of each and every bloycle used in the city limits of Chicago, and providing for a tax or license fee of not less than $2$ therefor, in addition to the cost of issuing the certificate.

"The undersigned were appointed a committee by the Associated Cycling Clubs of Chicago for the purpose of writing each alderman in the city protesting against the injustice of this ordinance, should it be passed by the Council, and requesting the support of every alderman in opposing the measure. It is unnecessary for us to go into details as to why this would be an unjust and unlawful imposition on the cyclists of this city, who comprise, as nearly as can be ascertained, over one hundred thousand of our population.

"The Bupreme Court of this State has held that a bicycle is a "vehicle," and it, therefore, should receive the same rights and be subject to the same restrictions as any other vehicle.

"As regards any taxes which must be paid by the owner of a bicycle, it lawfully comes under the head of personal property tax, and no wheelman will object to paying that tax. Should the City Council of Chicago levy an additional tax of $2$ or any other amount, it would be double taxation and class legislation pure and simple; further than this, it would be illegal and could not, therefore, be collected.

"We trust that in the interest of fair treatment that you will carefully consider this question and use your influence toward defeating the ordinance immediately that it is presented, and by so doing you will carry with you in the future the good-will of the cycling population of this city."

Bad as is Alderman Ballard's ordinance taxing Chicago cyclists $2$ a year, it—not quite as comprehensive as the bill recently introduced into the

L. A. W. ASSEMBLY.

Called to Order in New York This Morn-

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.-The annual convention of the League of American Wheelen began this morning at the Grand Union men began this morning at the Grand Union Hotel in this city, with an attendance of bicycle enthusiasts from all the States, from Maine to California. The primary object of the convention is to discuss several important changes in the laws of the League and the selection of a piace for the next annual meet. It is probable that the guestion of whether or not the color line will be drawn in the League will come up alsositicly to be some fight as to where the next annual meet of the League will be held. There are two parties, the Boston and Asbury Park, and both maintain that it would be best for the League to hold its meet on their respective tracks. The Bostonians contend that their Waltham track is the best in the world, with better accommodations than any other track in the country, and the Asbury Park people say that the track there is just as good and much easier of access. Caucuses were held ast night in the hotel and both sides are bringing every influence to bear to secure the meet.

The color line will likely provoke more contention than any other question before the League, as the members are very strongly divided on the question. A mighty effort will be made to have the law prohibiting colored wheelmen in the League repealed and another mighty effort will be made to allow it to stand just as it is.
The roll was called this morning at 10:40.
